

FREE HEART CLINIC IS SET FOR AREA FEB. 11

A one-day consultative and diagnostic heart clinic for medically indigent patients will be held in the Rowan County Health Department, Morehead, on Wednesday, February 11, 1970. This clinic will serve patients from Bath, Boyd, Carter, Elliott, Greenup, Lawrence, Menifee, Morgan and Rowan Counties.

Dr. Jacqueline A. Noonan, and other physicians from the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, will conduct the clinic.

Cosponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association, the Kentucky State Department of Health and the County Health Departments, the clinic provides a diagnostic service for the patient, along with recommendations for treatment and management of the case. It also provides an opportunity for the referring physician to consult with the clinician regarding his patient.

Necessary expenses of the clinic are being underwritten by the Kentucky Heart Association and the State Department of Health. Clinic personnel, as well as space and equipment, will be provided by the Rowan County Health Department and the State Health Department.

Only those patients who have a written referral from a physician will be admitted to the clinic.

1970 FEED GRAIN PAYMENTS WILL BE MADE EARLIER

Secretary of Agriculture, Clifford M. Hardin, announced that final payment to participants in the 1970 feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs will be made as soon as possible after July 1, 1970, and will be completed as much as two months earlier than in previous years.

The speed-up in payments recognizes the extreme financing problem faced by farmers and assures that many of them will receive their total payments much earlier than in the past. The step-up will apply not only to voluntary diversion payments but also to those payments such as for feed grain and cotton price support and wheat certificates which were not included in the past in the earlier payments.

The plans now being implemented should put most of the approximate $3.3 billion in the 1970 crop payments in producers' hands by the end of July or by mid August. In contrast during the past few years, producers waited until after Sept. 1 for about 45 percent of the payments. Previously only a little more than 10 percent were made in July and only about 12 percent of the total came under the advance payment provisions.

Property Owners Must File Reports Deadline Stated

FRANKFORT, Ky. — All property owners must file reports with county property valuation Administrators before March 1, 1970, State Revenue Commissioner James E. Luckett said today.

At the same time, Luckett spoke out to correct two mistaken ideas in regard to property assessment in Kentucky. The recently ratified constitutional amendment which makes it possible to revalue farmland cannot become effective until the General Assembly passes an enabling law, Luckett pointed out. The earliest date such an act could become effective is Jan. 1, 1971, because action under the amendment cannot be retroactive.

"The other mistaken idea is that it's okay for an owner to list the same valuation every year on land or buildings," Luckett said.

"The steady rise in the value of land, both rural and urban, and increased construction costs make raising the values listed with property valuation administrators if the Court (of Appeals)—directed level of fair cash value is to be met."

Inflation more than offsets the depreciation which, ordinarily would lower the value of a building, the commissioner explained.

Besides real estate, the property which must be listed includes tangibles such as cars, mobile homes, aircraft, water craft, merchants inventories and trade tools and intangibles such as stocks, bonds, notes, mortgages, accounts receivable, annuities, money in out-of-sale state banks and the like.

Taxes on property declared in this January-March period are due and payable in September, 1970.

I Would Have Drawn It For You

In Galatians Chapter 5 Verse 13 and 14, we find these words: "For brethren ye have been called unto liberty only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh but by love serve one another. For all the law is fulfilled in one word even in this thou shalt love thy neighbors as thyself."

Matthew 23 Verse 11: "But he that is greatest among you shall be your servant"

The above three verses remind me of a neighbor we met today, Mrs. Virgie Conley. As we were riding from the home, one of my neighbors who has had the pleasure of knowing Mrs. Conley longer than I, told a little story about one member of her family.

He said he was working in a field near the Conley home and when he would get thirsty he would go to an open well in their yard and draw himself a good, cold drink of water.

But one day when he went to the well, someone just a short time before had drawn a bucket of water and left it sitting on the well box. So he just drank from the water that was drawn and as he started back to his work a member of Mrs. Conley's family asked him why he didn't draw himself a fresh bucket of water. He jokingly told her he was too lazy.

Although he was more able, physically, than Mrs. Conley to draw the water, she in all honesty told him, "I would have drawn it for you."

Mrs. Virgie Conley was thought of by her neighbors as being this kind of woman. If a member of her family or a friend or neighbor needed her to go one mile she was always willing to go an extra mile for them. We, her neighbors, feel that Jesus now will tell her, "I was hungry, and ye gave me meat, I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink, I was a stranger and ye took me in, I was sick and ye visited me, I was in prison and ye came unto me." I'm sure he will say, "In as much as you have done this unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

In Heaven, I feel she will be happier if they will let her continue to serve rather than to be served. If some one in Heaven fails to draw themselves some pure cool water she will tell them, "I would have drawn it for you."

To her children, grandchildren, friends and neighbors: if we attempt to fill her shoes we will have to live by her rules in our dealings with other people and be willing to say, "I would have drawn it for you."

BY JESSIE E. LEWIS

Jan. 26 — Very sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Frank Conley of Malone. Heartfelt sympathy to her daughter, Mattie Grigsby of West Liberty and to all other members of her family.

Relatives here for the funeral of my sister-in-law, Gladys Stacy, were: Justine Hunter (my sister) of Conersville, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carrier of Lancaster, Ky. (my niece), who spent Tuesday night with Martin and Jessie E. Lewis.

Norman Stacy and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Anderson of Chicago, Illinois spent Wednesday night with Martin and Jessie E. Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Anderson spent Sunday night with her aunt, Treva Gullett and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Hester Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Barker and two children of Hager Hill, Sunday afternoon.

Preaching at the Sunday morning service at the Brushy Fork church were Revs. James Walters of Felecity, Ohio and Stanley Lykins of Jeffersonville and Rev. B. T. Morris.

Mr. and Mrs. Kash Lykins are visiting a few days with their children in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Wilma Clevenger and children of West Liberty were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Finley Litteral.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul McCleese and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Bill McCleese and daughter of Jackson were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barker.

Mrs. Sola Patrick and son Fernin were calling on Mrs. Wonnies Barker Sunday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. James Walters and daughters of Felecity, Ohio visited Sunday morning with Rev. and Mrs. B. T. Morris.

I had a letter from Ilerman H. Williams of Gaston, Indiana saying he had read my news letter in The Licking Valley Courier and wished to correspond with any one he thought would write him. He said he had visited Morgan County a few times the past several summers and thought The County was a beautiful place and had such friendly people. He says he is sick and unable to be out in the winter weather and enjoys reading The Courier.

Winston Gullett and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lewis went to see Jessie E. Lewis father, W. M. (Marion) Stacy, and her sister, Arlene Lacy, near Jeffersonville, Ky. in Montgomery county Sunday and brought W. M. Stacy to Dr. Holman. He had a spell of nose bleeding, but seemed to be improving some Sunday.

We were glad to have a good friend and neighbor like Winston to drive our car and go along with us on a rushing trip.

Jerry Stacy of the U. S. Army, son of the late Cletis Stacy and Victoria Gevedon visited his aunt Drotha Stacy, Sunday morning and Gary Havens. Jerry spent one year in Vietnam and will be stationed somewhere in the States after spending a leave with relatives and friends.

IN MEMORIAM
To my Grandmother who lost a mate
At life's dark and deathly gate—
No one can take away the pain
Only God and his shower of rain.
My Grandmother, so good and kind and always had a friend in mind,
Now stands in her place with much sorrow on her face
Soon the sorrow will erase, and she will cheer, because she will know that he made it to heaven, without any fear.
So dearest Grandmother look to God for love and strength, for you will never go wrong or get weak.
By a granddaughter who loves you dearly

Policyholder Questions Answered by the Health Insurance Institute, 277 Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q. I know I should have health insurance, but I've always been afraid I'll be rejected. I don't know why really because I'm in pretty good health and haven't had any major illnesses or operations. Exactly what does an insurance company consider when you apply for health insurance?

A. When a person applies for individual health insurance, a number of factors are evaluated and compared against known standards.

For instance, age is a prime factor, since the chance of illness or injury is usually greater with advancing age. Middle aged or older people are also more susceptible to degenerative diseases.

Sex is another factor. There is a higher incidence of disability among women than men. However, men have more accidents.

Women are prone to certain diseases, and of course, lose time from their jobs due to maternity.

The present physical condition of an applicant is determined through a medical examination. A number of questions in the insurance application relate to medical history, since prior illnesses may affect the future health of a policyholder.

Some occupations are riskier than others — there are also environmental hazards in certain jobs — exposure to dusts and poisons, for instance.

So far as a policy for you is concerned, the decision will be made on your individual circumstances. If, however, you are in good health, not severely overweight or underweight and don't have a risky job, you probably won't have any trouble getting the health insurance you need.

Coal-Hauling Railroads or Reservoirs? Are Either for Progress?

The Norfolk & Western Railway and the U.S. Corps of Engineers are getting set to spend several millions of dollars in Martin county, along with giant coal corporations and timbering interests.

The N&W will spend several millions building a 24-mile coal-hauling railroad up Wolfe Creek 15.9 miles, then tunnel through the divide onto the headwaters of Rockcastle Creek to tap virgin coal beds and valuable stands of hardwood timber.

And the U.S. Corps of Engineers will spend from $1 1/2 million to $1 million doing channel improvements in Rockcastle Creek.

Already one giant coal company has commenced opening a mine that will produce 2 million tons of coal a year in Martin county. And other mining companies no doubt will start mining operations along the new 24-mile railroad extension. For most of the valuable coal and timber lands in Martin have been bought up over the years by the big corporations and a few individuals.

Both coal and timber are now in short supply, prices are high, and the time is ripe to get out the valuable mineral and timber from one of the few remaining virgin areas of the state.

A bridge across Tug Fork of Big Sandy and 24 miles of rail line in rugged terrain, plus a 1700 foot tunnel through the divide from Wolfe Creek onto the headwaters of Rockcastle, will cost several millions. But hundreds of millions of tons of coal from four seams, mean many years of operation and no doubt big profits.

Moreover, the U.S. Corps of Engineers will help by doing channel work along the Rockcastle.

Which reminds us that The new rail line of 24 miles of Wolfe Creek.

through, a tunnel onto Rockcastle to tap the virgin beds of coal in southwestern Martin county near the Johnson-Floyd juncture would be about the same distance as a C&O extension from Paintsville up Paint through a tunnel at Crockett onto Elkfork to tap the rich beds of coal in Morgan. (See map elsewhere in this issue.)

But
Wolfe Creek and Rockcastle in Martin are not to be dammed up and converted into reservoirs. Rather, the Corps of Engineers will help with channel improvements along the streams.

But if the Paint Creek Reservoir is built, as planned by the Corps of Engineers, the C&O could not build up Paint into Morgan—a rail line could not ascend from Paintsville to a level with the reservoir that may cover most of the Paint valley.

Neither can the old rail bed of the Morehead & North Fork be used by the C&O to build a spur into Morgan, for a rail line can not ascend from Morehead to a level with the Cave Run Reservoir.

Thus two rail routes into Morgan's coal fields are being canceled out by Corps of Engineers built reservoirs, one on Licking at Salt Lick and the other on Paint west of Paintsville.

And we wonder at so-called progress—wonder which might be worse for Morgan, reservoirs that take thousands of acres out of our tax base and force hundreds of families to move away, or big corporations strip-mining coal that would ruin hundreds of thousands of acres and miles of natural streams which would be polluted with acid water and filled with mud.

Appalachian Act Extended And More Funds Appropriated

Congress recently voted to extend the Appalachian Regional Development program through June 30, 1971, and President Nixon has signed the bill.

The action gives authorization for non-highway programs totaling $269.5 million, slightly more than for the past biennium. (The highway construction portion of the act was extended through the year 1973 when the act was passed in 1965. But the present Congress gave authorization for highway work totaling $525 million through 1973, which is $150 million more than authorized in previous legislation.)

In allocating more money for the highway section Congress noted that only about one-half of the miles deemed eligible for construction could have been completed under the old authorization and it thus felt that an extension of the program was justified, and with more money. One reason more money is needed is because construction costs are now higher. Another reason is that the Appalachian Act provides payments to persons disposed of their homes by highway building, in the form of relocation payments—a much-needed aid for families who have to move and relocate.

Congress also amended the highway section so that funds can be committed for the development of local access roads.

Kentucky's portion of the non-highway money in the Appalachian act for 1970 will be divided as follows—$2,749,469 for grant-in-aid supplements, $2,231,744 for vocational education, and $262,673 for land stabilization. The grant-in-aid money is to cover community projects like sewage facilities, health and hospital facilities and many other development phases where local, state and federal monies are combined. In addition, the Congress upped the federal government's aid from 50% to 75% on certain health facilities projects. For instance, the region is to serve as a national laboratory for nutrition and child development programs.

Last October the federal Bureau of the Budget set up a practice that requires all applications for federal assistance projects be cleared through a state planning and development clearinghouse. This applies also to applications for aid to the Appalachian Regional Commission.

Under this procedure, any agency of local government intending to apply for federal assistance for a project under one of the designated federal programs (including Appalachian assistance for health facilities construction, sewage plants, highways and mining area restoration) are required to notify the state clearinghouse as well as its regional committee, of the intent to apply. And approval by the clearinghouse is needed to further process the application.

In Kentucky the clearinghouse for applications is the Department of State Planning in Frankfort.

BUSINESS HERE AND HEREABOUTS

BURLEY AVERAGE — Season's burley sales through last week totaled 596,261,504 pounds at a season average of $88.53. The Burley co-op has received 31 percent of gross sales at support prices, through last week. Only 11 markets were operating last week, and most of them are closing this week. Lexington, Cincinnati, and Shelbyville have not announced closing dates.

ASHLAND OIL & REFINING COMPANY has a new name. Effective February 2, the company will be known as Ashland Oil, Inc. Shareholders approved the change at a meeting in Ashland last week. Board Chairman Rexford S. Blazer and company president Orin E. Atkins announced that estimates based on preliminary figures show that the company has just completed its best quarter in company history, although no figures were available.

SAVINGS & LOANS ASSOCIATIONS would be able to establish branches out of the county in which they are located under a bill introduced in the House by Rep. Robert F. Hughes, D-Louisville. Under existing statutes, the association may not establish any branch except in the county in which their principal office is located. The bill would permit automatic mechanical and electronic devices to accept deposits, loan payments and other limited services.

LEXINGTON BLUE GRASS ARMY DEPOT, which has operated on a two-shift basis in supply and ammunition since 1964, will begin one-shift operations Feb. 2 to accomplish a savings of $50,000 in night differential pay. About 259 employees will be moved from night to day work.

WHEN — Kiplinger's business letter predicts that the record boom of the 60's will be followed by a new and even bigger boom in the 70's — but he doesn't predict when it will start. And he predicts more information despite what the government tries to do about it.

COVERED BRIDGE ATTRACTION — The Fleming County Chamber of Commerce has issued a printed brochure on "Land of the Covered Bridges" picturing and describing Fleming county's four remaining covered wood bridges, and is promoting a 90 minute, 46 mile tour of the four bridges. C. C. C. officials predict the remaining four wooden bridges will become the county's chief tourist attraction and will be worth a lot of money to the county. Other counties, or nearly all of them, had destroyed their wooden bridges for "more progress," and in doing so they destroyed valuable tourist attractions.

MOTORING TO BANKRUPTCY — It was Will Rogers who said America will be the only country to go to the poorhouse in an automobile. It costs approximately $1 million a mile to build modern parkways—and autos are keeping many families poor.

Department of Commerce in Washington Tuesday predicted 1970 will be a year of business slowdown and mounting problems. "There will be some gains in unemployment, corporate profits will be squeezed, the growth of the national economy will slow, and price increases will continue strong," said the report. The report is prepared mainly by the President's Council of Economic Advisors. And in a separate report the Census Bureau painted a similar picture of economic slowdown but continuing inflation ahead.

POLLUTION-FREE AUTOS — The federal government finally is taking note of the growing danger from automobile exhaust. A pollution-free engine for autos is the big challenge for the new decade, and two governmental agencies are competing for the role of guiding the development. Health, Education and Welfare Commissioner Finch has proposed to the Cabinet-level Environmental Quality Council a plan to help develop prototype engines developed by car makers, and Transportation Secretary Volpe is advocating a plan to give $100 million in governmental assistance to stimulate research and development of the two most promising types of engines auto manufacturers can devise. The President will decide which plan for the government to take in the fight to eliminate harmful automobile exhaust. Government action now is almost certain since the public is demanding it.

OBSERVATIONS • AND PREDICTIONS

BEAR TRAP — Winford Lewis of the Woodsbend section has preserved a huge bear trap, home-made by a local blacksmith, which belonged to his grandfather, Alex Short of Liberty Road. Mr. Lewis also has preserved a hand-made pair of bridle bits used by Lyle Short when he fought in the Civil War.

RAW SEWAGE — During a strike of city workers, the City of Cincinnati for several days has been dumping 60 million gallons of raw sewage in the Ohio river daily. Kentucky towns downriver are complaining, but now Ohio's Gov. Rhodes wants Kentucky to deed Ohio the northern half of the Ohio river. (Kentucky owns to the Ohio shoreline at present). We wonder why?

LAST RUN — Another crack passenger train, the Southern's

Royal Palm that used to make daily trips between Cincinnati and Florida, made its last run last week. The once-busy Royal Palm had been discontinued in southern states, one after the other as permission was granted, and had run only between Cincinnati and Somerset for several months. Only 7 passengers were aboard the luxury cars on its last run.

TOM DUNCAN'S— FRANKFORT WATCHLINE

FRANKFORT — Teachers are throwing the book at lawmakers. And their talks this week may mark the actual showdown on any real chance for more than token salary raises.

The fact is that more and more legislators seem to be agreeing with Gov. Louie Nunn's instinctive judgement that the public simply doesn't care whether teachers get raises right now.

And unless teachers get some momentum going soon, all the statistics about national averages and the like won't mean a thing by the time the formal General Assembly votes come.

A real straw in the wind was the House's absolute agreement on sending a teachers-retirement bill to the Committee on Appropriations and Revenue even though the Education Committee had approved it.

But school people are moving behind the scenes, too.

And the Kentucky Education Association could team with the University of Louisville to offer a package plan on dividing available money—despite howls from others seeking aid.

No one really expects any tax increase this session.

The question is whether there'll be any significant cuts. And always there's the question of timing.

Just as this may not be the teachers' year, it may prove not to be the standard-time ferret's either.

There still are probably enough "slow-time" votes on the floor of both houses to carry the day. But now there's real doubt whether the anti-Daylight Time bill can get a vote.

Yielding to demands for public hearings may have cost the standard time people their chance. It certainly lost their best chance.

And some of the same factors are working on the Sunday-closing and parochial school questions.

Most legislators felt before the session that something should be done to clear up the Sunday-closing muddle.

But now they're confronted by enough different proposals

West Liberty, Ky., Jan. 29, 1970

And, despite constitutional and other questions, the economic factors of life point up the need for encouraging continued operation of parochial schools.

Republican Senator Don Johnson—not a Catholic—spelled out the potential costs of an influx into public schools.

But there probably will be at least one other proposal, in addition to authorizing — but not funding—pay supplements to lay teachers in private schools.

This other plan would aim at aiding parents paying tuition for their children. But the two could divide the basic support.

These won't be partisan issues. In fact, until the budget is adopted you aren't likely to hear anything partisan from the Republicans. In step with Gov. Nunn, they're moving carefully.

And this puts it squarely to the Democratic majorities to mount a program—or programs. But they've shown little sign of uniting, although a system of checks and balances may be involving—as with recommending the teachers-retirement bill.

The budget-analysis hearings drag on and on. Though often dull, they may signify the coming age of the Legislature on money matters.

But the probing for "fat" has turned up about enough to fry an egg—one egg. Not typical, but perhaps toughest among those defending budget requests, was State Treasurer Thelma Stovall.

She smiled while batting her eyes before offering to write paychecks as long as the money holds out—then shut down. The trouble was the chairman, Representative William Curlin of Frankfort, has more voters in his district who live and die by the state pay-check than any other legislator.

Arnett Gets 10 Yrs. For Beating Death

PRESTONSBURG — A Floyd circuit jury has found Russell Arnett, 27, Royalton, guilty of manslaughter in the beating death of George Shepherd, 54, of David, in front of a local club on Nov. 3, 1969.

The jury deliberated less than an hour Thursday after hearing testimony which began that morning. They gave him 10 years for the killing. Arnett denied being with Shepherd and produced two witnesses who testified he did not leave the club.

I see in a vision
A garden so sweet,
Roasting God's glory flower
Poised in silent retreat.
Such infinite beauty
Denotes tender care
That is lavished with love
On flowers I see there.
There are lovely pink roses
Of delicate hue,
Shy pansies, soft violets,
And larkspur of blue,
Dahlias and four-o'clocks
Reign, too, supreme.
In this garden of beauty
I see in my dream,
But there's one precious flower
To look over the rest,
Its unfeigned tenderness
Proving it best,
This beautiful flower,
Which I like to recall,
Is my mother... the sweetest,
The dearest of all!

NEW RAILROAD TO TAP RICH COALFIELD — NEW Railway is preparing to build a 24-mile branch line east-west through Martin County to tap rich coal lands on Wolfe Creek and Rockcastle. Heavy line at right of map shows route starting from N & W's main line on the West Virginia side of Tug River, crossing into Kentucky on a new bridge, then going up Wolfe Creek 15.9 miles and crossing divide through a tunnel onto headwaters of Middle Fork of Rockcastle Creek. There are large areas of virgin coal on Wolfe Creek and Rockcastle, also considerable timber, oil and gas.

Martin County's Rich Coal Beds to Be Tapped By 24-Mile Railroad

Corps of Engineers Also To Re-Channel Streams in Martin

A few months ago Island Creek Coal Co. announced it would start mining operations in eastern Martin county to produce $2 millions of coal a year.

And last week Norfolk & Western Railway applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission to build a 24-mile branch from its main line on the West Virginia side of Tug Fork of Big Sandy into the Wolfe Creek area of Martin county and then through a tunnel onto the headwaters of Rockcastle on the other side of the county not far from the Levisa Fork.

So it appears that the big corporations are getting set to tap the virgin beds of coal in all parts of Martin, both along Tug Fork on the east and extending westward along Wolfe and Rockcastle creeks nearly across the county.

The N & W said the new branch railroad will be laid in 39-ft. sections and announced that work would be commenced soon, including the building of a bridge across the Tug Fork of Sandy.

In fact, work forces already have been moved into the area to prepare for the construction. (N & W and C & O railroad are the process of merging. C & O operates up the Levisa fork and N & W up the Tug.)

ROUTE OF RAILWAY

The new railroad will run almost entirely across Martin county from east to West, of Rockcastle, then up the Middle Fork of Rockcastle another 3 1/2 miles.

More particularly, the railroad will come across Tug River just above the mouth of Wolfe Creek, near Kermit, W. Va., then cross onto Wolfe Creek and go up Wolfe Creek 15.9 miles to the mouth of Panther Fork, then up Panther to its head and through a 1700-foot tunnel onto the headwaters of Laurel Fork of Rockcastle, crossing same and going onto the Middle Fork of Rockcastle, then up the Middle Fork a distance of 3 1/2 miles.

Except for the area near Kermit, the entire region is nearly virgin coal land with four seams of coal of high quality, also considerable following Wolfe Creek part of the way, then crossing a divide through a 1700-foot tunnel onto the headwaters of hardwood timber. Most of the land has been purchased through the years by big corporations and by a few individuals.

Martin county lays between the two forks of Big Sandy. The N & W Railway and US-52 run up the Tug Fork on the West Virginia side, and the C & O and US-23 run up the Levisa Fork. Martin county lays between the two highways and railways.

The C & O once had a branch off its Big Sandy division that reached the northwest corner of Martin, but it is now inoperative, a tunnel having caved in.

Most of the terrain is rugged, and in the early days was limited to areas where logs could be floated down the two forks of Sandy or sometimes down Wolfe Creek and Rockcastle, both of which flow into Tug. Little of the coal has been touched, particularly inside the county away from the two forks of Sandy, Levisa on the west and Tug on the east.

Oil and gas operators explored the eastern part of Martin many years ago, and developed a big gas field near Kermit, Columbia Gas built a 10-inch line (the old Tripple State) into Cincinnati, and this line is still in operation.

$1/2 Million U. S. Job On Rockcastle

Almost simultaneous with N & W's application to build the new coal-hauling line, the Huntington, W. Va. district office of the U. S. Corps of Engineers announced is preparing to start a federal project to dredge the channel and straighten the channel in certain areas of Rockcastle Creek in Martin county. The Colonel in charge said the Corps of Engineers will spend from $1/2 million to nearly $1 million on the project.

Rockcastle Creek rises in the Southwest part of Martin, runs through Inez and on northeast, joining the Tug Fork of Sandy in southeastern Lawrence county.

The N & W's 24-mile coal line will have its terminus on the Middle Fork of Rockcastle.

Policyholder Questions Answered by The Institute of Life Insurance, 277
Park Ave., N. Y., N. Y., 10017

Q. My husband died 14 years ago, leaving me his business and enough life insurance to pay the cost of hiring a good manager. My oldest son is finishing college this year — and I think the manager he wanted about his position being taken away from him. Someone suggested a life insurance plan to make him feel more secure in his job. He's making the business flourish. What can I do?

A. This type of concern is common among men who manage a family business — and it is often solved by setting up an attractive deferred compensation plan, funded by life insurance. With your agent's help, you might set up a package specifically earmarked for your manager's retirement and also guarantee termination pay equal to the cash value in the policy at any time, if he should leave before that. A straight life policy could be used for this. Increasing benefits could be provided as conditions change. This evidence of your earnestness will help, too. And the attractive "bonus" may be an incentive to even greater effort.

Q. I read a story in the paper the other day about a woman who was celebrating her 100th birthday. The story went on to say that she had "outlived" her life insurance policy and was collecting the full amount of her life insurance. Can this possibly be true?

A. Yes, it's undoubtedly true, although rare. Policies are usually set up to the cash value equals the full amount of insurance at age 100, that being the approximate span of human life. When the policyholder reaches that age (which is extremely unusual) he or she can then be paid the face value of the policy. The death rate is so high and the number of people who live to be 100 is so small that it is impractical to keep policies in force beyond that age.

WINTER IS NOT WITHOUT ITS ATTRACTIONS

By Nevyle Shackelford

As John Burroughs once said, "He who marvels at the beauty of the world in summer will find equal cause for wonder and admiration in winter."

This may be a bit hard to believe, but for those who will look with a discerning eye, winter is not without its attractions. It is a season of simplicity, it is true, and a return to austerity. Or, as it has been so aptly put, like a philosopher returning from the banquet of an emperor to a cup of cold water and a moldy crust of bread. It is a time when all nature reverts to the fundamental with only the essential elements remaining—the day and the night; the mountain and the valley, and the perpetual infinite and ever-changing sky.

But winter still has much to commend it. There's the miracle of the snow that disguises every humble and immobile object, clothing it in royal robes of ermine. Then there's the magic of the winter moon. At no other time does it appear so large or glow with such wonderful purity, or reach such sufficiency of illumination. And although stern, dark and foreboding, the wooded mountains are not without a certain beauty. With naked branches of the trees etched in sharp relief against the sky, these hills of home appear in solemn, meditative phantasy that causes the nature lover to gasp in wonder.

Unmuffled by vegetation, sounds are sharper in winter. The boom of the hunter's gun, the ring of a woodsman's axe, and the lonesome whistle and thunder of a train can be heard from much farther distances. And while the bird symphony is gone from the woods, much music remains. Rigid, tense, and bare in the cold, twigs and needles on the trees become as strings on a violin. With the wind serving as a bow, there are tunes as stirring to the imagination as the strains of Mendelssohn and Strauss.

Summer, the counterpoint of winter, is seductive and appeals to the corporeal senses and to the sentiments and affections. But cast in a more heroic mold, winter appeals to the intellect, or in other words, more to the mind than the heart. Psychologists say severe studies and disciplines come easier in winter and the mind is more capable of comprehending the abstract.

Also, as it has been written, that when locked in the depth of winter, when nature lies despoiled, and wrapped in a shroud of snow, we turn to moral sources for gratification. The dreariness and desolation of the landscape, the short gloomy days, while they circumscribe our wanderings, make us more keenly disposed for the pleasures of the social circle and people are brought more closely together.

For most there is more time for rest and relaxation in winter. More time to read, to think, and to recuperate in mind and body, and to remember again friends half forgot and nearly out of mind.

Winter is a time of keening winds, piercing cold, frostbite, chill, sleet, and concomitant inconveniences, but without it we could never fully enjoy the warmth, the bounty, and the gaiety of other seasons. Actually winter isn't so bad, even for those who cannot go to Florida. Then here in Kentucky and the Northern Hemisphere, close on the heels of winter comes Christmas.

The thing not to do in winter is become pessimistic because it will get us nowhere and will not hasten the return of spring one bit. It doesn't take much to make winter bearable, at least according to Poor Robin who long ago wrote thusly in his Almanack: "Now trees their leafy hats do bare to reverence Winter's silver hair; A handsome hostess, merry host, a pot of ale now and a toast, a bacco and a good coal fire, are all this season doth require."

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Payments to 462,000 social security beneficiaries in Kentucky amounted to $33,779,000 a month as 1969 ended, and $1 1/2 million more than the monthly rate a year earlier, Thomas B. Thompson, social security district manager said this week.

In the Nation as a whole, social security payments for the year amounted to nearly $27 billion, Thompson said. $2 billion over the total for the previous year.

During 1969, the number of men, women and children receiving monthly social security benefits passed the 25 million mark, Thompson said. One out of every eight Americans is now receiving monthly payments.

And while the majority are older people, about one out of four of the 25 million persons now on the benefit rolls is under age 60.

In the State of Kentucky, 462,000 persons are receiving monthly social security benefits, Thompson said. As 1969 ended, 68,400 disabled workers and their dependents were collecting payments that amounted to $4,528,000 per month.

Payments to survivors to the 116,000 widows, children, and aged dependent parents of workers who have died — were $21,070,000 a month at the end of December. And over $33,779,000 was being paid out in retirement benefits to older workers and their dependents, a total of 277,600 persons.

During 1969, the trust funds out of which cash benefits are paid, took in $5.5 billion more than the total paid out. Assets of the two funds—one for retirement and survivors insurance and one for disability insurance—stood at $34 billion as 1970 began, Thompson said.

With the delivery of the monthly checks on Saturday, January 3, Thompson noted, the social security program rounded out 30 years of benefit payments. Only about 22,000 people were entitled to benefit payments for the month of January 1940, when monthly benefits started, and 410 of those charter beneficiaries, now 95 years of age or older, received their 360th benefit checks this month.

Over the years, the social security program has grown, not only in the number of people on the benefit rolls, but also in terms of the protection provided American families, Thompson said.

Ninety-five out of 100 mothers and children now have survivors protection and would receive monthly benefits in case of the death of the family breadwinner.

Four out of five men and women between the ages of 25 and 65 can count on monthly benefits under social security in the event the breadwinner becomes too disabled to work for 12 months or longer. Ninety percent of the people over 65, and 92 percent of all those who reached 65 in 1969, are receiving social security benefits or could receive them if they were not still working. Practically every person 65 and over, working or not, has hospital insurance under Medicare, and 95 percent are also protected under the supplementary medical insurance part of Medicare that helps pay physicians' bills and other medical expenses in and out of the hospital.

EDISON HOME PHONOGRAPH with latest patent date of 1902 was an object of considerable interest which Homemakers viewed during their meeting with Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Pelfrey at their post-Civil War home, West Liberty's oldest. The phonograph reproduces music from cylinder records. The Pelfreys have five records, and they played "Uncle Josh and Aunt Nancy Go To New York" for the homemakers.

Homemakers Club
For Antique Lesson

The West Liberty Homemakers Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Pelfrey on Jan. 15, meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Lettie Cantrell.

Devotion was by Mrs. Orene Denney, who chose for her subject "Antique" reading verses from St. Luke and ending with a prayer.

An interesting lesson on "How to Recognize Antiques" was taught by Mrs. Lettie Cantrell, after the lesson, Mrs. Pelfrey conducted club members on a tour of her beautiful home, showing all of her beautiful glassware and antique furniture and telling stories about each piece and how she had collected it. Many of the things she had refinished her self. One of the highlights was an old phonograph which played cylinder records. After the tour, refreshments were served to Lois Barber, Carolene Pelfrey, Anita Myner, Golden Nickell, Lettie Cantrell, Marie Franklin, Leona and Sherry Cantrell, Melvin Gardner, Thelma McGuire, Kathleen Blair, Eva Elliott, Della Williams, Evelyn Holbrook, Floris Cox, Orene Denney, Grace Adkins, Bette Bellamy, Mattie Amyx, Jean Sheets, Georgia Stamper, Irene Vest, Martha Rose, Mary Ann Foudray, and Mr. and Mrs. Pelfrey.

The club, which has four new members, extends appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Pelfrey, who so graciously opened their lovely home for the meeting.

WISHBONE CHEST in walnut and beautifully refinished graces an upstairs bedroom in the Pelfrey post-Civil War home. The chest is so named because the mirror frame simulates a wishbone. It is fastened to the chest by a wooden dowel pin that goes down into the back of the chest. At either side of the top are walnut jewel drawers.

A beautiful period piece is this roll-top walnut secretary which Mr. and Mrs. Pelfrey obtained from the estate of the late Congressman G. C. Swetnam in Lawrence County. In it when purchased was a set of "Letters and Messages of the Presidents" in several volumes which a notation says "are allotted for Lawrence County."

Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. Rev. 14:13. It was three years ago today, Mom, when someone said, "Your Mother is dead." An emptiness and loneliness came into our life and we were left stunned and heartbroken. Then, as we looked on you as you lay there in quiet repose with the peace of God etched on your face, we knew that you had not died, that we had only been separated for a while, and out of the very depths of our despair came this marvelous declaration of our Lord, "I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and he that liveth and believeth in me shall never die." This realization takes away the sorrow, even though the loneliness will always be here.

You were sleeping when the angels beckoned, so about all you did was smile a goodbye. As you came to the gates of the land of fadeless beauty, there was no struggle to stay, no unfinished business at the last moment. Nor did the angels catch you by surprise. You had been expecting them for the last few days for God to open the door and let you enter your eternal home, that you had been preparing for, for most of your life.

So today, we know that though you were once feeble and weak, now the cruel pain is gone forever, and you can climb the eternal hills of glory, effortlessly. We can almost (by faith) see the speechless joy on your face as you bow at the feet of your Savior. We love you, Mom, and someday we too, shall enter that Heavenly home and receive the abundant life that our Savior promised.

In memory of Lucy M. Day, who passed from this life January 23, 1967. By a daughter, Mrs. Verna Fairchild, Xenia, Ohio.

REDISTRICTING MAY BE NEEDED GOV. NUNN SAYS

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Gov. Louie B. Nunn said Saturday he thinks the 1970 census will show a need for state reapportionment, and if it does, Nunn said he will call a special session of the legislature "for that purpose."

Nunn said he will act, "without the courts having to become involved."

He added, "This is a legislative matter, and I would like to keep the judiciary out of the political aspects of this thing. I have the highest regard for the courts, but also I recognize my responsibilities as executive, and I'm willing to face up to those, without the courts having to become involved."

Nunn said the special session could come as early as this December or in January of 1971.

The 1970 census will be taken April 1, and federal law requires that the results be certified and made available to the states by Dec. 1.

Although the state constitution requires the legislature to reapportion itself every 10 years, there often have been lags before the legislature has taken action.

The last state reapportionment occurred in 1963, and this action was prompted by a federal court suit initiated by then-Louisville Mayor William O. Cowser — now a U. S. representative.

NOTE OF APPRECIATION

I want to say thank you to all many friends, relatives, and neighbors for everything that was done for me during my illness. Thanks to those who visited me at Morehead and at Lexington, to all who called from day to day, to those who sent cards, those who sent flowers and fruits, and for the many, many other things that were done to help and cheer, the most of all for the many prayers that were offered on my behalf, and for the skill of good doctors and nurses, and the good Lord. I still have my own ticker — not a pacemaker. Again, thanks to all.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Earl W. Kinner The Licking Valley Courier West Liberty, Kentucky

Many thanks for your two fine tobacco editorials.

As I am sure you know, I am deeply concerned over recurring reports that the Secretary of Agriculture is about to order another cut in the barley allotments.

I don't see how this can be tolerated by an industry which is already in crisis. It would be a dreadful blow to the 17,000 growers in the 7th Congressional District.

You may be sure that I shall continue to do everything I possibly can to forestall another allotment cut.

Best wishes to you always,

Sincerely,
Carl D. Perkins

Oh such a sweet smile on his face oh what peace and on what grace.

What a wonderful Grandfather I have had to tell me to be good, when I was bad.

I loved him and he loved me we were all so happy and free. Now he must leave this old world behind, with nothing but heaven on his precious mind. No one can fill his place, only God and his wonderful grace.

Written by a granddaughter who loved her Papa very much.

ODDS AND ENDS

By Earl Kinner, Jr.

Regarding certain questions raised in this column last week relating to wooly worms and their ability to indicate the weather by the markings on their coats: A certain expert in these matters informs us that we were somewhat misinformed about wooly worms indicating a mild winter this year. We are told that actually the prognostications based on wooly worms observed last fall have thus far proved correct. Markings observed on the critters in the autumn—two narrow black bands, one near the head and one near the tail—indicated harsh weather during early winter and again near winter's end, but relatively mild weather in between (we are told). Thus, if this is so, after nearly a month of snow and sub-freezing temperatures, we are now in for some pretty nice winter weather. However, we are told that had the wooly worms been marked with a single wide black band around their middles, harsh, or at least uncommonly cold weather would have prevailed throughout the mid-winter months. Also, if the black band had been exceptionally wide, we would have had a long absolutely miserable winter with a late spring. It may or may not be significant, but the expert said he preferred to remain anonymous.

RANGER COLUMN

BY JOE MAUK
Forestry Technician

MOREHEAD, Ky., Jan. 20. —
 Last Friday, no bids were received on the boundary of National Forest sawtimber located on Shroitt Hollow of Licking River in the Cozswell area. At one o'clock Friday afternoon, when the specified time for opening of bids passed without any bids being received, it went up for sale on a negotiated basis at the minimum advertised price of $991.00.

Speaking of timber sales, our timber marking crew, composed of Melvin Brunson, Jack Sloan and Jim Hogge, are busy getting another boundary of timber marked for sale. The boundary they are now working on is located in Hungry Branch of Triplett Creek east of Farmers.
 It will cover about 450 acres with an anticipated volume of 900,000 board feet of sawtimber and one thousand cords of pulpwood. With the weather we have been having the last few weeks, it is not the most pleasant time to be doing work in the woods.

However, in order to get the areas ready for sale on schedule, it is sometimes necessary to take advantage of every day it is possible to get into the woods.
 Quite often we hear the remark, "You can sit by the fire today, with all this snow on the ground you don't have to worry about forest fires." That is true insofar as fire control work is concerned. Fire control is only a minor portion of the work done on a National Forest District. In addition to fire control work, we have all of our timber sales to mark as well as the other work related to timber sales, such as location of skid and logging roads within the sale area. We have property lines to maintain, recreation development and maintenance work, wildlife work, such as game counts, development and maintenance of food patches, browse areas, and field habitat areas, and the upkeep of our lookout towers and other structures.

We once had a lookout tower-man who went to work on the District, hose mother as well up in years and not too familiar with what work he had to do. After he had been working for a period, she remarked to him, "I don't know whether I would work for an outfit like that. They keep you up there on that lookout tower during the sunny weather and as soon as it starts to rain or snow, they take you off and send you to the woods to work. Looks like you could stay up there on the tower when the weather is bad and do the outside work in good weather. She had a point, however, it does not work out that way.

CUTUNO FARMER

AL WAGES DIES

Alfred Wages, farmer of Cutuno, Magoffin county, died Jan.
 22 in route to a paintsville hospital after suffering a heart attack. Elder W. G. Ratliff of West Liberty was called to preach the funeral.

SO TRUE

From the cradle to the grave mankind has an angle — new parents soon learn whether their baby is crying for cause or effect.

West Liberty has been able through the years to lift itself by its boot straps, so to speak. We've depended on ourselves, our merchants, our schools, our police department, our churches, and our people, to compete successfully with other towns for improvements.
 West Liberty may not be the best town in the world, but is recognized as one of the best in the Mountains.

And everybody has helped, particularly our businessmen — people you can depend on in emergencies, people who support you, who support our churches, our schools, our local groups. These businessmen are people you know personally, and people who are interested in you and in West Liberty and in Morgan county and in local problems.

Your Hometown Merchant appreciates you and your business. Working with hometown businessmen and with all other groups, you can make our community and our county a finer place to live.

Remember, your Hometown Businessmen are the backbone for progress in the area where we live.
